

Hey Zoë,

I really needed to talk to you. Funny enough, a lot of shit happened recently since the time I last saw you.

First, you have to listen to the voice memo. You probably have seen it before you clicked on this file. Listen to that voice memo first, then continue reading this letter.

So... you have heard the voice memo. Do you recognize what they're saying? I'm really curious about your opinion on this. That conversation with Anton was about 3 or 4 days ago, so it isn't bothering me that much now. But when I heard this for the first time, not gonna lie, I was kinda shocked. I mean... you know... it's true. And what they're saying is also true. But it still made me upset, you know. I also don't really know how I should interpret my friends' intervention. I don't even know if I can call them "friends". They did talk about me behind my back. Did you hear what they said about me?!?! They said that I have problems, mental issues and basically called me crazy. I mean... that's not very nice, is it? Maybe they're right, but it still hurts, you know. I do know that I can trust Anton, and that I can see him as a friend. He was the only person who actually told it to my face. I respect him for that. But yeah, now... this pathological liar thing is stuck in my head. It turns out people want me to go see therapist?

Anyway, that was the first thing I wanted to talk about. Second, I went to see Dr. Strange with Nathalie. It was really fun. She looked gorgeous as always. Red top, black leather jacket, blue skinny jeans. We did a little catching up, even had a photobooth moment, and eventually went to see the movies. Don't know how, but we're 10 minutes late, even though the movie started at 1900, and we met at 1800. Anyway, before you start thinking: "Dates in a movie theater never end well...", that was my opinion too, but... Omg this was so much fun. You see.. She really talks a lot during movies. Normally that's really annoying, but as long as it is about the actual movie, it's actually kinda fun. What also helps is that Dr. Strange was a horror movie! And it actually was a good horror movie. People die, Wanda is covered in blood, etc. And it turns out, Nathalie is a complete scaredy-cat! Which means she constantly held and squeezed my arm to a pulp. It was kinda cute how it started too, because at the beginning of the movie she was weirdly caressing my arm, and when I looked at her, she apologized immediately and didn't dare to look at me. When the jump scares came along, and she got scared to death, I just let her hold my arm. Great movie, btw. You have to see it. You don't even have to have watched Spider-Man 3. Although, you do need to have watched Wanda-Vision.

Anyway, the movie ended and we both wanted to do something after. So, we decided to get a bottle of wine and hang out at the Rijnkade. Apparently, yesterday was some kind of special day according to the star signs and manifesting shit. If you wrote down 11 things you want in life on a piece of paper and burn it before 2359, there was a higher probability that they'll come true. So we did just that. After that, we walked for a while, and that was that. It really was fun. But... it made me realize, along with what Anton said, she isn't the one. Because I know she doesn't like me as much as I like her. And apparently I need someone who like me just as much. Nobody could have guessed that. Haha.

That's it. I hope to hear from you soon. Maybe you could write me back. Love you.
Xx Jer
