

Hey,

I thought I write you a letter because, why not? How are you doing, Zoe? I am doing alright. About to finish my last couple exams. I'm so done with work and school. I'm glad when It's finally over.

Btw, kind of nerd talk. I am currently writing this letter from my new operating system on my laptop. You know what an operating system is, right? For example, Windows or Apple IOS. Right now, I am using something called Garuda Linux. It's an Arch Linux based operating system. So I still have to play around with it to become more familiar with the operating system. It's very pretty, tho. I'll show it to you next time I see you. So far it works great. Got every bit of software successfully installed. For example Scrapy (phone screen mirror software), IntelliJ and Vscode (my code editors), keepass2 (my password manager), Firefox, Discord, Virtualbox, etc. (I show you a screenshot of the new operating system down below.) Oh and I'm also writing this letter from a text editor called LibreOffice. So if this letter looks a bit different, that's why.

Alright I wanted to talk to you about a new subject. Well, kind of new subject. You once told me that you wanted to go on a vacation with Ricardo. You also told me that you wanted two weeks off from work, and Ricardo only one. But my question is, if you had like three or four weeks off, where would you go? Italy? Maybe Spain? Perhaps Japan, Dubai, or Indonesia? Indy told me today that he wanted to go to Bali with his (kind of) girlfriend. When he was talking about Bali it made me realise that, I wanna go somewhere to, and actually enjoy myself. (Unlike I'm doing right now in London.) Honestly it just feels like I'm still working in the Netherlands, but I just have to travel 4 hours, the people speak English, cars drive on the left side, gingerbread tastes way better, and most of the people here suck. I think going to a place like Bali, would do me well. But where would you wanna go? And what would you wanna once you're there?

Also, the Netherlands suck. You can literally only buy food in the city. There are no foodstalls or anything, anywhere outside the city. And the most of the restaurants here are kinda shitty to. (Maybe I haven't visited the right ones yet.) But, the best restaurant I've been to in the Netherlands was De nieuwe Tijd. It was good, but it wasn't nearly as good as the restaurants in London. That was my rant about the Netherlands.

Lastly, I wanted to discuss a personal matter. Chicks man... I honestly think that I'm just going to stop trying. (Not that I actually tried that hard.) But I think that I should give up on that for the moment, and find happiness in a certain passion or something. Basically, I need to find something what I really like and do it. Problem is that I have no clue what that might be. I know it isn't Data science. Maybe it's IT-Security but idk... I think I'm looking for something new? I'll get back to this subject some day.

Wanna eat cheese fries tomorrow? I'm hungry.

Alright, that's it.

Love you,
Xx Jer

